Important note on the decision situations

The other participants you will interact with in the following decision situations are not real. Their decisions and usernames were determined in advance.

Please nevertheless make your decisions as if they were real other participants.

General instructions

In the following you will be asked to take part in a series of decision situations. In doing so you will interact with different people. All participants learn only a self-chosen username of the participants they interact with.

In the individual situations, different roles (winner, loser, dictator, reviewer, investor, judge) are randomly assigned among the participants. These will be explained in more detail in the respective situations. If not enough participants are online, the system will wait a maximum of 10 seconds and then read from a stored list of previous decisions.

Several decision situations follow one after the other, in which you can win or lose money. As a basis for your decisions you have a base payout of 5.00 $. At the end of the study, the amount from one decision situation will be selected at random, offset against your base payout of 5.00 $, and paid out to you.

Please enter a username here that does not reveal your identity.

Looking for participants ...

Please wait until enough participants are online. The system waits a maximum of 10 seconds.

Round: Luck and bad luck

You are lucky! You have been placed in our winner group. You are a winner in this round.

The amount currently available is 10.70 $. We give you this amount as a gift.

You now have the following options:

1. You can keep 10.70 $.
2. You can share the money with another participant of this study who was not placed in our winner group and did not receive a gift of money. This person remains anonymous to you, and you remain anonymous to this person.

How much of the 10.70 $ do you give to a person in the bad-luck group?
